september storm

Hurricane Isabel's strong winds leave a tree uprooted. The college shut down for a day while the storm reaked havoc in the community. Isabel tore through the area in September, leaving behind debris, leaves and homes without power.

Downtown hangouts such as Goolrick's pharmacy provide an atmosphere that allows students to relax. Friends and couples filled bars, restaurants and coffee shops as they took much needed breaks from busy weeks filled with school work and stress.

One learns adages about time at an early age, such as "Time flies when you're having fun." For busy college students, time became the essential element to balancing many obligations. At times the days and weeks seemed to creep by, yet when looking back, students often felt that the weeks of the semester had passed quickly. In academic classes, rough drafts of papers became final copies while project proposals evolved into completed assignments. For athletes, practices turned into games and team goals became either realized or lost as members played their games from first to last. Dancers partied at fall formal in October, only to return to the dance floor at the spring formal in April. Organizations recruited members and watched as officers took charge and executed their club goals, and then passed their torch to the leaders of tomorrow. Freshmen moved into their dorms, only to cross the stage at Ball Circle and receive their diploma four short years later. As time passed, the days became weeks, the weeks became months, and the academic months formed the perfect ten.

a perfect academic year consisted of 120 months, two semesters, 120 exam days and forty-five days of school-sanctioned break time. From August through May, students at Mary Washington College hit the books hard as collegiate expectations climbed higher and higher. Staffed with personable and scholarly professors, MWC students received knowledge, guidance and grades from the best of the best. MWC professors demanded excellence, and the 9,500 men and women that make up our college community turned in countless papers, exams, and projects that proved we gained nothing less than a perfect education.

Whether harboring a passion for acting, a knack for set design, or a love of the arts, the theatre department enriched the lives of both students and spectators. Opportunities abounded for writing, acting and learning for students enrolled in classes. The department also offered the unique chance for its members to share its work with the public through performances. Talent, career goals and new forms of entertainment emerged through the collaboration of students and faculty.

My favorite class wasn't even one in my major; it was Intro to Theatre. Kevin McClusky's passion for his art made it fun and interesting." -Anne Beverly Walking in circles in the fountain, RAs in training create a whirlpool. Early August brought high temperatures and students did all they could to stay cool on campus.

Eyes on the blaze, RAs learn proper fire fighting techniques. A traditional plus of RA training become the annual fire safety training session. In this session, RAs crawled through a smoke-filled room, attended a Q&A seminar with Fire Marshall Ruth Lovelace, and even practiced with fire extinguishers out in the parking lot.

The summer ended quickly for residence life staff as training started as early as August 4th. Head Resident training and dozens of Resident Assistants moved in on Sunday, August 10th. Early morning Seacobeck breakfasts greeted sleepy eyes as building staffs gathered at 8:00 am everyday in the Washington Diner. Following breakfast, resident assistants heard various seminars on a range of topics, including Recognizing Depression, Group Dynamics, Building Residence Hall Community and Fire Safety. Area Directors, Head Residents and Resident Assistants worked together through August to prove that ResLife fosters an environment “where stars can shine.”

Randolph Hall RAs Matthew Reed and Mary Rothlisberger liven up the walk back from lunch by taking a trip to the trash can. As free time during training proved limited RAs learned to make the most of every moment.

ith the news of approaching Hurricane Isabel, the state of Virginia officially declared a state of emergency and urged its residents to be prepared. Mary Washington College cancelled class after 12:00pm on Thursday, giving students the chance to go home to weather the storm if they wished. While many headed home, a brave number stayed and watched Isabel take Fredericksburg by storm. Power outages led students to experiment with creative entertainment as they read fairy tales out loud, played card games, sang songs or turned up their battery-powered radios for a dance party. Although the mood remained jovial during the storm, the college enforced a residence hall lock down for safety reasons, allowing few to enter or leave the buildings. As students emerged the next morning, they felt shocked at the changes that had occurred in the world around them, as they found the campus and the surrounding area littered with fallen trees and debris. Many students had to deal with damaged cars and other property due to the storm, but most insisted that the close campus community made weathering the storm a good experience.

CROSS country

The Mary Washington College Cross Country teams finished strong in another season of excellent performance. Women's Cross Country won the CAC Championship for the eleventh season in a row, with the men's team claiming a close second after battling it out with Salisbury University. Proud and still running strong, both Cross Country teams went on to compete at the NCAA South Regional in Atlanta, GA. The men's team finished in fourth place and the women's team finished fifth overall.

LITTLE KNOWN FACTS ABOUT SYNCHRO

1. Synchronized swimmers can not touch the bottom of the pool during a routine; a two-point deduction will be given if they do.
2. The water is a minimum of nine feet deep.
3. There are underwater speakers used so that the swimmers can hear their music above and below the water.
4. Synchronized swimmers wear nose plugs while doing routines.
5. Swimmers may spend up to a minute underwater at a time without coming up for air.
6. Top swimmers usually practice eight hours a day six days a week.
7. A lift in synchronized swimming is done by raising the body of one or more swimmers up to or above the water surface. Swimmers execute lifts with only their body strength and are not allowed to use the pool bottom.
8. Deckwork is the movements the athletes perform on the deck once the music starts and before entering the water.
9. Deckwork only sets the mood of the routine and does not count in the final score.
10. Well trained synchronized swimmers can swim 75 meters underwater without coming up for air.

(1) Simultaneously popping out of the water, Jill Jensen, Elena Quintilana, Mandie Correvous and Kim Frost perform their pirate routine. Moves such as this one required great leg strength from the swimmers.

(2) Pointing their toes, three swimmers practice a move known as ballet legs. When performed in a close knit pattern, this move added to the visual integrity of the routine.

(3) Propelling her leg above the surface, a swimmer executes a flamingo bent knee.

SYNCHRONIZED SWIMMING performing perfection DANCE TEAM

The crowd sat excited with anticipation as three swimsuit clad performers took their places at the far end of the pool. As the music started the three launched into a series of movements before simultaneously diving into the water. When they appeared again, torsos rising out of the water in perfect synchronization, they put their hours of preparation to the test. The synchronized swimming team, known as the Terrapins, spent numerous hours practicing for competitions throughout the season. Also apt at performances, the completely student run dance team made their mark on campus. The girls on the team frequented basketball games, parades and soccer games bringing school spirit wherever they went.

JANUARY • Arms above their heads, the members of the dance team perform a carefully choreographed portion of their routine. The dancers choreographed all of their own dances used throughout the season.

OCTOBER 24 • Flashing a smile to the onlookers lining the streets, Danielle Somers enjoys participating in the homecoming parade. Dancers provided added flare and entertainment along numerous parade routes over the course of the year.

“NOT MANY PEOPLE REALIZE THAT THE DANCE TEAM IS COMPLETELY STUDENT RUN. WE HAVE REALLY COME A-LONG WAY SINCE WE BEGAN FOUR YEARS AGO. OUR CANARDIERIE IS AMAZING, AND THE FACT THAT WE WERE GRAND CHAMPIONS OF OUR FIRST COMPETITION EVER REALLY SAYS A LOT.”

In light of future careers in the business world, economics and business students continued educating themselves in areas such as accounting, finance, management and marketing. While some students saw themselves as corporate executives, others planned on beginning their own businesses, and the business classes aided in these endeavors.

As a result of the James Monroe Center's expansion, the Carnegie Foundation bestowed Mary Washington with university status. This upgrade prompted the need for a new name to reflect the change. Women's rugby continued a tradition of excellence in their 2003-2004 season, claiming the title of the number one team in Division II athletics in Virginia, making them the third best Rugby team overall in the state. Their fall season stats impressed crowds with flawless victories as MWC Rugby won every Division II A-side game that they played. Kim Woods and Ashley Horne, two of Mary Washington's rugby players, made the all-star team. Senior Cheryl Yamanaka described the team as "pretty much a diverse group of girls that get together for the love of the sport; some people think we're crazy but for most of us (there are over 50 on the roster) it's a way of life."

MAID MARY ULTIMATE

The Field — A rectangular shape with endzones at each end. A regulation field is 70 yards by 40 yards, with endzones 20 yards deep.

Initial Play — Each point begins with both teams lining up on the front of their respective endzone line. The defense throws ("pulls") the disc to the offense. A regulation game has seven players per team.

Scoring — Each time the offense completes a pass in the defense's endzone, the offense scores a point. Play is initiated after each score.

Movement of the Disc — The disc may be advanced in any direction by completing a pass to a teammate. Players may not run with the disc.

Change of possession — When a pass is not completed (e.g., out of bounds, drop, block, interception), the defense immediately takes possession of the disc and becomes the offense.

Substitutions — Players not in the game may replace players in the game after a score and during an injury timeout.

Non-contact — No physical contact is allowed between players. Ricks and screens are also prohibited. A foul occurs when contact is made.

Fouls — When a player initiates contact on another player, a foul occurs. When a foul disrupts possession, the play resumes as if the possession was retained.

Self-Refereeing — Players are responsible for their own foul and line calls. Players resolve their own disputes.

Spirit of the Game — Ultimate stresses sportsmanship and fair play. Competitive play is encouraged, but never at the expense of respect between players, adherence to the rules, and the basic joy of play.

GAME TIME

With the dawn of a new semester, Mary Washington's Ultimate Frisbee players returned to the turf. Past generations affectionately dubbed the players Mad Mary Ultimate, and the group remained one of the most active and popular club sports on campus. Such gatherings proved a traditional and essential part of the fabled "spirit of the game" for which Ultimate Frisbee proved famous.

As "hump day" Wednesday came to a close, many students found themselves looking for a fun way to unwind after stressing about classes. Places like Brock's, Bourbon Room, and Hard Times offered a place for students to take time off from studying on Wednesday and Thursday nights and hang out. Such places often showcased bands made up of Mary Washington students, such as Hunklefunk and Here Today, or a DJ. Happy hours proved another perk of going out, as bars frequently had specials such as Thursday Night "50 Cent Drafts" at Brock's. "I always make sure I get my work done in time to go out on Thursday," Meg Senk said.

Others still opted to remain in Fredericksburg and continue with work or parties in the area. In any case, winter break as always offered a welcomed break.

After a surprise turn-around season in 2003, Eagles basketball continued to dominate. The team traveled to Florida over winter break for pre-season training. They then took on the conference, losing only two games in the regular season. In a win against Marymount, the men set a school record for sinking 17 three-point baskets. Over the course of a semester, students enjoyed a variety of concerts, comedians, movies and documentaries open for attendance. Giant Productions prided itself on hosting the most popular and enthusiastic groups they could find. This year alone they brought huge stars such as Lonestar and Rahzel. Cheap Seats continued to provide the campus with a movie channel and also weekly movie showings in Dodd. Seminars on Milton, and courses covering Shakespeare and British literature captured the attention of English majors. Freshmen filled their English 101 requirement, while students from all areas of study enrolled in classes such as Global Issues of Literature. Linguistics classes allowed students to discover meanings behind language. Through English classes, students improved and perfected their writing skills. Speech classes helped students overcome their anxiety about public speaking. Speakers and writers benefited from these skills throughout the duration of their academic career.

However, increased precipitation on Monday night forced Mary Washington to cancel classes on Tuesday. After a mild winter, students enjoyed the opportunity to spend a day in wintry reverie. Some students used the day to study, sleep or catch up on homework. Other students treated the day as a mini vacation and spent time with hallmates and friends. Sledding, the building of snow sculptures and snowball fights prevailed as popular pastimes throughout the day. By Wednesday, college officials had the majority of campus cleared, and classes resumed. The brief break provided students with a change of routine and a chance to unwind.

Community Outreach and Resources (COAR), a student-run club, promoted volunteerism and service-learning. The club members organized numerous activities throughout the year that each benefited the community. Each year, approximately 1 in 4 MWC students became involved in documented service efforts through COAR. Advised by MWC's Associate Director of Student Activities and Director of Community Outreach, COAR employed a staff of 6 students yet had over 25 students on the council. The COAR Council consisted of volunteer student leaders who coordinated programs for group and individual community service. COAR also supported service-learning efforts in the classroom to promote the college's mission of experiential learning.

Music fans shivered in freezing temperatures under a rainy sky. Despite the dismal weather, concert goers remained in high spirits as they awaited the chance to attend Lonestar's first concert on their new tour. The pop-country foursome received enthusiastic cheers as the crowd rose to their feet to celebrate their arrival on stage. The group opened with their recent hit "My Front Porch Looking In" and proceeded to play both new releases and old favorites such as "I'm

a week of fun and relaxation

The campus became empty, not a student in sight. Where did everyone go? The weather proved great, so everyone must have gone on spring break! Mary Washington had an early spring break compared to other schools in Virginia, but that did not stop students from escaping after midterms plagued the week before break. Some students decided to go site seeing in major cities, while others took a more relaxing route and hit the beach for some fun in the sun. Other students decided to continue their education over break by joining fellow biology classmates to a tropical area to learn more about that environment. While going somewhere exotic for break became possible for some breakers, other students opted to spend time back home, catching up with friends and family. Regardless of how one spent their spring break, one fact remained certain; a week for break prevailed as an awfully short time... time flies when you're having fun.

With new coach, Keri Pilling, coming on board this season, the riding team gained the leadership necessary to excel. Ranked first in Region I for most of the season, the team consisted of 20 members competing in eight different levels within each show. Events included events such as open flat, open fences and walk/trot. The team practiced three times a week at Hazelwild Farm. Many of the members owned their own horses.

With such intriguing classes as forensic psychology and psychopharmacology, the psychology department regularly drew in numerous students interested in careers ranging from psychologists to profilers, or even jobs in social services. Similarly, the sociology department offered students an opportunity to explore social problems and address the factors that have led to the shaping of America. Anthropology courses studied unique cultures and different ways of life. The departments all served to enrich student's understanding of both individuals and the world at large.

With a talented group returning from the 2003 season, the Eagles played well this year. With a 10-4 record, the team finished second in the CAC. They only had one loss in conference play and outscored their opponents 135-108. In the CAC conference semifinals, the team played a close game and suffered a hard loss to the top ranked team in the nation, Salisbury. Despite this loss, the Eagles still earned their first national ranking when the USILA poll voted them number 20.

Carrying on the a tradition of spectacular play, the Mary Washington College Women's Lacrosse Team ranked eleventh in national standings. They fought for many hard earned victories and fell primarily to teams much higher in rank than them. The Eagles made it to the Capital Athletic Conference Semifinals, but lost to the Salisbury University Sea Gulls. The Women's Lacrosse squad concluded their season with a 9-7 overall record.

Organizations sought to provide the campus community with entertainment, art, information, and publications to serve as printed records of their college years. Under sunny skies, art students utilized their imagination and artistic genius to create masterpieces. While art history classes educated students on artists and their works, art-studio courses taught students the principles of ceramics, sculpture and painting. Musical notes also played as students perfected their skills in preparation for upcoming recitals. With the coming of spring, both departments found Mary Washington's beautiful campus—a source of inspiration.

celebrating the end of an academic era

As seniors put down their pencils after their last exam, a strange and exciting feeling filled their hearts. They had now finished their undergraduate career. In the week leading up to the graduation ceremony, seniors celebrated their accomplishments. Many students spent a few days at the beach for one last vacation with college friends. On Thursday, May 6, seniors gathered for the tradition of Grad Ball. Hosted by Class Council, this elegant evening provided one last chance to celebrate with friends. Graduation became a reality on Friday, May 7, as graduates gathered for rehearsal in Dodd Hall. At rehearsal, graduates discovered the proper way to wear their graduation regalia, found their preassigned seat for the ceremony and learned the details of the ceremony. Seniors received their final grades after rehearsal. Class Council sponsored Convocation on Friday night, and gave out awards for excellence in leadership, athletics and academics. Early on Saturday morning, seniors donned their caps and gowns and gathered in Jefferson Square for the big event.

Moments before graduation, a senior slips a cell phone into his pocket. Graduates used their phones to locate loved ones after the ceremony. Seniors also used their phones to text message their friends and call loved ones who did not attend the ceremony.

Sharing in the emotion of the day, two friends embrace. After building friendships throughout their undergraduate years, seniors realized that graduation took them in many different directions.

As Pomp and Circumstance played over the speakers at Jefferson Square, graduates knew that their moment of glory had arrived. Seniors proudly advanced down Campus Walk past their now former professors to join their class in Ball Circle. The class president and the Board of Visitors welcomed the graduates. Dean Hall then honored those graduating with academic honors and presented several awards to the faculty. Governor Mark Warner gave a brief and inspirational commencement address. Following Warner's speech, President Anderson officially conferred the degrees, and graduates turned their tassel to the left side of their cap to signify their new academic status. One by one, each graduate crossed the stage and received his or her diploma.

Following Krystin Gokey and Emily Mosley's signing of the alma mater, the new alumni joined their families and friends as they began their lives as official Mary Washington College graduates.

The MWC Softball team proved a hit this season, sporting success and good sportsmanship through every inning. With a young returning team, coaches and players had high hopes for the 2004 season. MWC Softball finished second in the Capital Athletic Conference Championships, falling only to nationally ranked Salisbury University. The Eagles had three impressive sweeps this season, triumphing against Shenandoah University, Catholic University and Gallaudet University.

Coming off of their most successful season ever, the Eagles looked to show their strength again in 2004. With the leadership of seven seniors, the baseball team ranked nationally for most of the season. The team rallied at the end of the season, winning four out of five games to move into first place in the CAC, prevailing as the first time they entered the tournament as a top seed since 2001. Although they went on to drop two games to Salisbury in the tournament, their season succeeded overall.

A perfect seniors

AS GRADUATION GREW CLOSER, SENIORS REFLECTED UPON THE TIME THEY HAD SPENT AS UNDERGRADUATES. SENIORS REMEMBERED FIRST REALIZING THAT THIS COLLEGE WOULD BE THEIR HOME FOR FOUR YEARS. AS FRESHMEN, THEY MOVED INTO THEIR ASSIGNED DORMS AND MADE THEIR FIRST FRIENDS AT CAMPUS. THROUGHOUT THEIR FIRST YEAR, THEY ENJOYED NEW FREEDOM AS THEY EXPLORED THE VARIOUS ASPECTS OF COLLEGE LIFE. AS SOPHOMORES AND JUNIORS, GRADUATES RECALLED SELECTING MAJORS AND FORMULATING THEIR CAREER GOALS. ONCE THEIR SENIOR YEAR BEGAN, STUDENTS ATTEMPTED TO SPEND TIME WITH COLLEGE FRIENDS WHILE STRUGGLING TO FINISH THEIR DEGREE REQUIREMENTS. AS THE TEN ACADEMIC MONTHS PROGRESSED, SENIORS PREPARED FOR THE MOMENT WHEN THEY COULD ADD BA OR BS TO THEIR NAME. STUDENTS BUSIED THEMSELVES AS THEY EITHER SENT POLISHED RESUMES TO PROSPECTIVE EMPLOYERS OR METICULOUSLY CHECKED APPLICATIONS TO GRADUATE SCHOOLS AS THE END BECAME IMMINENT. DESPITE VARYING IN THEIR FUTURE PLANS, ALL SENIORS SHARED ONE FEATURE IN COMMON; ON THE MORNING OF MAY 8, THEY FOUND THEMSELVES FILLED WITH SADNESS ABOUT LEAVING FRIENDS, EXCITEMENT ABOUT NEW POSSIBILITIES AND DETERMINATION TO ACHIEVE THEIR HIGHEST ASPIRATIONS.

the moment when seniors received their cap allowed them to recognize that their dreams of graduation would soon become reality.

*All hail, dear Alma Mater,
We sing our praise to you.
High on Marye's Hilltop
You stand forever true;
Born in truth and honor
You ever more shall be,
The model of our future years
And all eternity.*

*Whene'er we have to leave you
We never will forget,
The lessons you have taught us,
And all the friends we've met;
And we your sons and daughters
Will hold your name on high,
So here's to Mary Washington;
Our love will never die.*

A perfect people

THROUGHOUT THE TEN MONTHS OF THE YEAR, PEOPLE EXPERIENCED MANY CHANGES. IN AUGUST, THE ACADEMIC YEAR BEGAN, BRINGING NEW FRESHMEN TO THE CAMPUS COMMUNITY. SOPHOMORES AND JUNIORS SELECTED MATRONS IN SEPTEMBER AS THE REGISTRAR COLLECTED DECLARATION CARDS. HOMECOMING IGNITED SCHOOL SPIRIT IN OCTOBER. NOVEMBER BROUGHT ACADEMIC DEADLINES AS STUDENTS STRUGGLED TO FINISH PAPERS AND PROJECTS. DECEMBER CREATED STRESS DURING EXAM WEEK, BUT BROUGHT RELAXATION AS WINTER BREAK COMMENCED. IN JANUARY, THE SPRING SEMESTER BEGAN, AND SENIORS EMBARKED UPON THEIR FINAL SEMESTER AT MARY WASHINGTON. SPRING BREAK COMMENCED IN FEBRUARY, ALLOWING A CHANCE TO UNWIND AFTER MIDTERMS. IN MARCH, FRESHMEN, SOPHOMORES AND JUNIORS PREPARED FOR THE UPCOMING ACADEMIC YEAR AS THEY MET WITH THEIR ADVISORS AND REGISTERED FOR THE FALL SEMESTER. IN APRIL, EXAMS BEGAN AND STUDENTS ANTICIPATED THE FREEDOM THE SUMMER MONTHS WOULD BRING. GRADUATION ENDED THE ACADEMIC CAREER OF SENIORS AS THEY TOSSSED THEIR CAPS IN THE AIR IN MAY. AFTER THE CLOSING OF THE TEN MONTHS, PEOPLE EMERGED WITH GREATER KNOWLEDGE OF THEMSELVES AND THE WORLD AROUND THEM.

HALL HISTORY

Named after Edward Alvey, Dean of Students from 1936 to 1971, Alvey earned the title of newest freshman residence hall. Similar to the residents of Alvey, Dr. Alvey lived as a busy and ambitious man. Dr. Alvey prepared class schedules, planned new courses with department heads, assembled material for the catalogue, and performed other activities associated with the office of the dean.

HALL HISTORY

In 1911, Willard Hall opened as the first dormitory. The dorm carried the name of the famous temperance leader, Frances Willard. In 1914, the General Assembly appropriated $37,500 for the first unit of Virginia Hall. When Virginia opened in 1915, it housed the president's office and the library. The college constructed the final section of Virginia, including the columns facing Ball Circle, in 1935. Mercer Hall functioned as the Infirmary. The name of the building honored Fredericksburg physician Hugh Mercer, who Mary Washington trusted as her regular doctor.

HALL HISTORY

The college officially named Mary Ball Hall after George Washington's mother, Mary Ball Washington. Historians knew little about Mrs. Washington. Some argue that her birthdate fell between 1706 and 1708. Mary lost her parents at the age of twelve and married Augustine Washington at twenty-three. Previously widowed, Augustine had three children. Together Mary and Augustine had six children. Mary lived to see her eldest son George become president of the United States.

HALL HISTORY

The small dormitories of Custis and Madison honor famous Virginian women. The college named Custis Hall after the daughter of George Washington's adopted son, Mary Anne Randolph Custis Lee. Lee married Robert E. Lee and lived within eyesight of the college. Madison Hall honored President James Madison's wife, Dolly Payne Madison. As first lady, Madison risked her life to save Gilbert Stuart's portrait of George Washington before British troops burned the White House.

HOME OF THE WESTFEST

HALL HISTORY

Designed by J. Binford Walford and financed by a PWA loan and a grant, construction of Westmoreland Hall began in October of 1938. The initial design allowed for accommodations for 116 residents. The basement of Westmoreland Hall provided storage space and a construction area for George Washington Hall's stage scenery. The college did not permit construction or painting on the actual stage, so students built the sets for the productions in Westmoreland's basement.

HALL HISTORY

When Mason Hall opened in 1954, at a cost of $1,356,000 along with Randolph Hall, the Free Lance-Star declared it, "the newest, costliest, and swankiest quarters" on the campus (September 13, 1954). The new furnishings alone amounted to $56,000 of the cost. Attached by a circular brick terrace, the buildings surrounded a vast courtyard complete with an elaborate stone fountain found midway below the terrace. The hall received its name in honor of Ann Thomson Mason, the mother of George Mason.

HALL HISTORY

Randolph Hall honored Thomas Jefferson's daughter, Marther Jefferson Randolph. After her mother's death at age ten, Martha became a companion to her father. She accompanied him on many business trips and lived with him in France for five years. She married her 21-year-old third cousin, Thomas Mann Randolph, and had twelve children. Randolph served in the Virginia House of Delegates and Senate, the United States House of Representatives, and from 1819 to 1822 served as governor of Virginia.

HALL HISTORY

As soon as construction on Framar ended, the President took up residency as his former home underwent renovations to become a residence hall. In later years, construction of Randolph and Mason actually forced the movement of Framar further down the hill on the south side of campus to allow ample space for the new buildings. Framar also spent years as a residence for advanced students majoring in Spanish to become emerged in the language. In the summer of 1959, Bushnell residence hall reached its completion. Bushnell, named after former dean of women Mrs. C. L. Bushnell, became the first building named for a living person. Bushnell provided another first for the college; as an experiment in living situations, Bushnell housed students from all four classes. This later became the norm on campus. South Hall honored Joan Whittemore South of Hampton who directed alumnae affairs.

HALL HISTORY

The Thorington Construction Company built Jefferson Hall in September 1967 after a landmark removed the city reservoir and leveled the ground. Thomas Jefferson Hall became the first hall to have elevators. To honor the wishes of students craving solitude, plans for Jefferson included eleven single occupant rooms. The design of the color scheme aimed to create an atmosphere of elegance in the dorm's main entrance.

HALL HISTORY

Russell Hall began its service on campus as an administrative building named in honor of the first president, Prof. E. H. Russell. The architect who designed Russell chose to construct the building in the shape of a cross with Corinthian style columns on the north and south ends. An original feature of the building included a small swimming pool in the basement smaller in size than the average classroom. The building connected to a dressing room and provided access to the original gymnasium.

MARSHALL MEMORIES

HALL HISTORY

In 1960, administration opened bids for a new 144 bed dorm to sit on the corner of Sunken and William. The college chose to name the dorm in honor of Mary Willis Ambler, the wife of Chief Justice John Marshall. Her maternal grandfather served as governor of Virginia and her father filled the duties of treasurer of the Commonwealth.

APARTMENT HISTORY

First built between 1966 and 1969, the Marye's Heights Apartment Complex originated as private homes. However in 2002, the college bought the apartments to open them up for student housing. Marye's Heights became home to upperclassmen for the first time in 2003. The apartments offered a way for upperclassmen to have more freedom in their housing situation while maintaining the luxury of living on campus. The apartments housed 2, 3, or 4 residents, with at least 2 roommates sharing a bedroom. The college furnished the apartments with a couch, desks, beds, a dining room table and a fully functional kitchen.

COMMUTING

The campus offered many helpful services to commuter students, including free lockers located in the Woodard Campus Center. In instances of severe weather, the Residence Life Office encouraged commuters to arrange for temporary overnight housing. The tan room in the Campus Center served as a lounge for commuters complete with sofas, chairs and an adjacent small kitchen.

a note from the staff

The Battlefield Yearbook Editors and Staff would like to apologize for the lack of a conventional people section including headshots as had always previously been included in the book. Due to legal issues brought to the Battlefield's attention midway through the year, access to the ID center's identification photos of the student body were not available for printing purposes. The staff attempted to remedy this situation by instead focusing on residence halls, organizing appointments for group shots to be taken, and asking for personal photos to be donated for inclusion in the book. Although the Battlefield realizes that this solution is not ideal as it does not provide a true account of the entire student body, the Editors and Staff ask the campus to extend their patience until a more satisfying solution can be found.

Jennifer,
You were the last child, the only girl, the baby who brought such joy.

Now you are a woman- beautiful, accomplished, multi-talented with your art and music and history degree.

How proud and happy you make us all. How wonderful it is for us to see you take your place in the world. How thankful we all are for your presence and love.

Take a deep breath and step confidently into your future. You are so loved.

TEN MONTHS AT MWC

a perfect ten

Dwelling of the fountain two girls reflect upon the past ten months. The fountain provided a meeting place for friends throughout the school year.

As doors to dorms closed for the final time, thoughts drifted back to memories highlighted from the past ten months. As most students simply packed up their belongings and relocated for the summer, a select group honored with ceremonial caps and gowns realized this summer would not just merely serve as time away from campus. Ten final months had offered them further wisdom, endless opportunities and countless memorable moments. Academic classes had come to an end as students possessed additional knowledge and preparation for the future. Athletes had completed their final trials either with the gratification of triumph or the bittersweet yearning for yet another season. Students attended their final parties, gave their final hugs and departed from the campus for the summer. Organizations ended their years with final meetings of celebration promising more events to come in the next academic year. The members of the college community achieved numerous accomplishments during the academic year spanning from August to May. The community, their actions, accomplishments, triumphs, failures, highs, lows and memories made for a perfect ten.

In Memory of Emily Cella

you will never be forgotten

I Used To

I used to wear
My hair in pigtails
And believe in magic
I used to think
Friends could never hurt you.

Bad things only happened
To bad people
No one died
And love was so easy

My biggest fear
Was the monster in my closet
Or the demons of the shadows
My biggest problem
Was what to wear to school

Innocence is broken
Faith is lost
I grew up

Bad things happen all the time
People I love have died
And some of my friends have Bruised my soul

But maybe I'll wear my hair
In pigtails again.

--Emily Cella

Thank you for a summer full of memories and the chance to have a great friendship. I miss you.

- maggie

Remembering Emily

.....she was wise beyond her years. She had more humor than most comedians, she had a richness of spirit, and natural grace of her own and she was kinder than the sweetest child. Her religion and faith and loyalty were deeper than anyone could imagine. She had a way of reaching out and inviting you to dance the dance of life with her. Within her heart there was a strength and courage and a wondrous beauty. She was a beautiful writer. She was always thinking, always composing in her head. She always had a subject, a project, a theme she was writing about and discussing. She was more interesting than any good novel. She believed there was no such thing as loving or believing too much. She always thought you were so much more than what you achieved - you are what you dream. She would tell you walk in the rain, taste its sweetness - rain cleanses the mind. She would say take the divine risk of living out loud. She would say to you, remember who you are and what matters most. We were loved by Emmie and she made such a difference in all our lives. I am never alone in this world, for we are all connected by our heartstrings, so I am forever connected to Emily. She was the sunshine in all our lives. She was our angel....

Abaloo, Emmie

- ee cummings

I am grateful for every minute I was able to spend with you. And, even though our time together was cut short, you will be in my life forever. I love and miss my best friend.

Time flies when you're having fun! It was just yesterday that I moved in a triple in Mason amongst a hallway of more girls than I could keep track of. And now, four years later, I'm moving out of a fabulous house and away from amazing friends that have shaped these years into such an exceptional time. Long live the randomness of the Wolfe St girls! Here's to hominy wrestling, "Tupperware" parties, reality TV, to going out when you don't really want to, slurpees and the roof. Kris, I could look all over the world, and never find someone that would be able to come close to duplicating the extraordinary travels and times we have shared. Em, Nikki and Steph, you all are amazing, and I can't wait to see the amazing things you have in store for the world! Mandie, I love you for your back rubs in the Rec, and Lynsi for being my summer partner in crime. I've already forgotten what was on my exams, but the memories with you all will be with me forever! Cheers! Oh! I almost forgot! Kendra and Kelly are the best editors a yearbook staff member could ask for. They are the backbone of every page of this book, and it looks fabulous!

I have really enjoyed my past 3 years at Mary Washington. I transferred here during my sophomore year and I couldn't be happier with my decision. Thanks to everyone who made it great, my Alvey transfer girls, my roommates, my friends. I'm thankful for all of my experiences here and wouldn't trade it for anything. I'm going to miss Mary Wash after I graduate this year, but I will never forget the good times, and the good people.

Well I think it's safe to say that I never left OSACS this year and I sure loved bonding with the creepy heater and orange couch. To Vicki and Tami, thanks for answering my billions of questions and showing me how to fill out numerous forms. To the staff (what little there was), thanks for being committed and dedicated. Katie, I can't thank you enough for making sure events were covered and doing so with such a positive attitude. I'm really excited to be working again with you next year. To my wonderful roomies at Charles and Fauquier, thanks for putting up with my nerdy yearbook habit. There's not been a dull moment since we moved in and I've relished every bit of it. Toilet caused black eyes, Brett's alcoholism competition, Montell Jordan and the Oaf, and broken windows. I can't wait for what next year holds. You all are my support system and I love you dearly. Kelly and Kendra, I know it's been trying at times, but I'd say we pulled it together well and really created something great. I've enjoyed working with you and getting to know you these past few years. You will be missed and must certainly keep in touch. Don't worry, I'm sure I'll be calling you with questions next year. Miss Mary Jean, I simply loved our late nights completed by Sheetz runs, and seeing you at Hyperion in the afternoons. You are a wonderful person to work with and I so enjoy your company. I'm thrilled about our copy-less, white space filled book next year. It will be beautiful.

another year, another book, and another string of late night dates with my laptop tallies the total at six tightly bound scholastic legacies. it seemed only yesterday that bexsell and i sat side by side in a well-equipped classroom, sipping wendy's biggie cokes and clicking the friday night hours away into yearbook oblivion, yearbook oblivion remains, though the twenty highspeed PCs have been replaced with an absent zip drive, an orange couch, and a noisy heater. to christine: for keeping me virtual company on deadline weekends and always ready with a much-needed bitter slant on the situation, you're the best roommate anyone could ask for. to jym: for sitting near on long working nights and listening while i chattered to myself about all things pagemaker, you're the sweetest boy this girl could ever dream of. to alicia: for typing in bitsy fonts and photoshopping this life into something colorful, you're the other joker in my deck of cards. to zinzers: for always being there asleep in my bed when i got home from the office, you're the best indianfriend in the whale longhouse. to our staff: thanks for all your hard work and dedication, we couldn't have done it without you. to kendra & kelly: you're the best tagteam this side of the mississippi — it's been excellent and things will never be the same without you two there. i hope you go on to do bigger better yearbooky things someday holding in your heart a few fonts for me and becca. to becca: sheetz, hyperion, and long-distance yearbooking are what we were born for. i'll see you next year. nerd.

Wow, I can't believe this is my last book. That makes my last of seven books. Seven books, six years as an editor, five cover designs, four years on the Battlefield staff, three conferences, two years as Co-Editor-In-Chief, and finally one book to really be proud of. There are a million people that need to be mentioned and thanked for all of their help with this publication. First, Glenn (our main contact with Taylor Publishing) thanks for being a great help and working with our schedules around deadline time. Ellen (our Taylor Rep), I can't thank you enough for all of your support this year, with our book, and with so much more.

I really enjoyed riding along with you to see what your side of the yearbook process is, thank you again, Vicki and Tami, thanks for all of your support and advice over the years. Even though this year ran a little more smoothly, as we now almost have the hang of everything we have to do, you were still a great help, and we really appreciate all the time and energy you give every day. Valerie, Erin, Marcy, Summer, Liz, and Rebecca, thanks so much for all of your hard work in your sections. This book wouldn't be the same without your dedication. Katie,

Thanks especially to sticking with your section all year and being an awesome meeting deadlines. I really hope you'll return next year, you were a huge part of this staff. To all the photographers, the quality of this year's pictures was way above what it has been in the past. This was especially awesome being that it was also our first nearly full color book. Thanks again for all your work meeting photo assignments, and being creative with your work. You made this book beautiful. Katie Delaney, what can I say? You are amazing. I love that you had the same vision for the photography in this book as I did: artsy, artsy and more artsy.

(even if it didn't really turn out that way.) You did an awesome job organizing a staff, film drop off and pick up and still finding time to take roll after roll of beautiful pictures. I hope you can make next year's book even better. Good luck! Becca and Mary. I have had such a wonderful time working with you girls. The inspiration for this book happened so naturally, and even though the book itself took a lot of time and effort, I think without a doubt this is our best work ever. You two put in countless hours making this book what it is, you should be really proud. Good luck with next year's book, I am sure it will be fabulous. Kendra, we became friends on our freshman hall, and here we are, just a building away from where we met, weeks after graduation, still working on our book. I couldn't begin to guess how many nights we have been the only ones still working down in the OSACS offices. I can't imagine what this book would be like without your amazing talent and never failing dedication. Even through the stress of deadlines and to be verbs, our meetings and undying love of fast food have been some of my very favorite parts of school. Thanks for everything and good luck in NC!

To everyone else who made my college years as wonderful as they were, thank you also. Lauren, you were the best roommate anyone could ask for. We have some pretty amazing memories, good luck in Atlanta. Kennedy, I had so much fun getting to know you this year. You, Steve and Deuce always made me look forward to Thursday afternoons. Maggie, what would I have done without you? We are goddesses of Victoria's Secret. I like to think we kept each other sane in that crazy place. Don't let anyone replace me too quickly. Thanks again for letting me live with you! Dave and Heather, I am so glad we all started hanging out, the Fredericksburg Karaoke circuit will never be the same (free-ee-ee-ee-ee). You guys really made my senior year wonderful, thanks and good luck! Earl thanks for all your design inspiration and coaching, a lot of this book is probably a result of your faith in me. Also thanks for being awesome, at break dancing I mean, and at imitating James Brown, and at bowling, and at hanging out with me for hours doing nothing (or color guard)... it's meant a lot to me. Marcy you are a crazy crazy girl, but we had a lot of fun, putting our trust in tarot cards, playing midnight tennis, hosting wonderful parties, celebrating birthdays for weeks at a time and just talking about anything, or nothing or just talking over each other. It's been great living with you; I can't believe it's over already. Good luck in whatever you do. I know you will be successful. Mom, Dad, and Danny thanks for all of your support, I can never thank you enough for how great you have been these past four years, this past year especially. I love you. And Josh, I am so excited to have you in my life. I started my college career with you, and I feel extremely lucky to be finishing it that way as well.

Thank you for everything.

I remember the hot, August day when I moved into Virginia Hall. As my family drove off after unpacking, I felt scared and intimidated. Miles away from all of my friends and family, I set a goal to make Fredericksburg my home. Throughout the past four years I have accomplished this goal. I live and work in the area, and I have grown to love it. Of course, as I built my new life at college, I had to include yearbook. After spending my senior year in high school as co-editor-in-chief of my book, I discovered my passion. I love creating something out of nothing. When a school year begins, there is no set staff, no designed templates, and no pictures have been taken. At the close of the year, I can hold in my hands a 296 page book full of pictures I chose and copy I wrote. Working on yearbook over the past four years has closely resembled my creation of my adult life. When I arrived at MWC, I had blank pages to fill, and walking across the stage at graduation I have created everlasting friendships, earned a bachelors degree in two fields that I adore, and I have created four fabulous yearbooks that I am incredibly proud of.

As each book comes to a close and a new one begins, I too am ending a chapter in my life. Without the support of my friends and family, I would not be the person I am today. First of all I would like to thank my yearbook and photography staff- your hard work and dedication has been admirable and I am very proud of all that you have accomplished. Tami and Vicki, thank you for supporting us throughout our editorship. I have learned so much about how to be a student leader from you. Katie- thank you for being so on top of photography this year- I never had to worry about getting quality pictures when I needed them. Anna and Phuong- I can't imagine having completed my psychology major without you two! You were always there to share the good times and to support me through my difficult times. To my research team- I love my WUFs and WUMA and I wish all of you nothing but the best. To Meghan- I am glad that we have formed such an amazing friendship. Best of luck with your doctoral degree. Please keep me informed of all details regarding your work with emotion and faces- you know I am living vicariously through you. To my soc major friends- Erin, Rachel, Mary, Portia, and Amber- I loved having classes with you and getting to know all of you. I wish you nothing but the best. Corinne- I will always miss my roomie. Every time I hear Stand by Me I think of you. Marcy- I loved meeting you and I had many wonderful times with you. Anne and SumSum- thanks for being my BFFs! Sum- you are an incredible friend and I truly admire you for the person you are. I joke that you should "stop being me" but the truth is I could never be half the person you are. Kelly, my love- we began with a prance and we ended with a yearbook all-nighter. Creating this book would never have been fun without you. You taught me so much about yearbook- your design skills are incredible. I loved our late night singing, our trips to New Orleans and New York, and our endless fast food meals. At the risk of sounding corny, you have made these years "a perfect four."

To my family, I would like to say thank you for supporting me and allowing me to make my failures and enjoy my successes. I am so lucky to have you in my life. I am prepared to enter the "real world" on my own, yet I am comforted by the knowledge that I will always have your support, wisdom, and companionship.

Justin- Thank you for supporting me through my yearbook deadlines, my busy semesters, and my crazy work schedule. We have been through so much these past four years, and we have emerged stronger than ever. Out of everything I am walking away with from college, our relationship is the one thing I am most grateful for. I can't wait to begin our life together in North Carolina. I love you.

Mary and Becca- Our love of yearbook brought us together, and the endless hours in the office and the good times in New Orleans made us friends. I am relieved to be able to leave the yearbook in such capable hands. As I submit the last deadline of this book, I am officially passing the torch to you. Good luck with next year's book- I am sure it will exceed all of your expectations.

As I leave this chapter of my life and prepare to enter the next stage, I would like to close with my favorite quote from The Little Prince by Antoine de Saint-Exupery. "Adieu, dit le renard. Voici mon secret. Il est tres simple: on ne voit bien qu'avec le coeur. L'essentiel est invisible pour les yeux." "Goodbye," said the fox. "And now here is my secret. It is very simple: It is only with the heart that one can see rightly; what is essential is invisible to the eye."

publishing information • The 2004 Battlefield Yearbook at Mary Washington College, Volume 91, was printed by Taylor Publishing Company, 1550 Mockingbird Lane, Dallas, Texas 75235. Glenn Russell was our account executive and Ellen Deyerle was our Taylor Representative. The Battlefield had a press run of 2000 copies with 296 pages of 80 pound enamel stock.

computer information • The book was completed on a Dell Computer using Adobe PageMaker 7.0 and Adobe Photoshop 7.0. Richmond Camera printed all photographs. Staff members scanned photographs with a HP Scanjet 7400c flatbed/slide scanner.

cover and endsheet information • The black matte cover was designed at Taylor Publishing's 2003 Yearbook Camp by a Taylor professional. The endsheets are wausau royal linen gray. The book included 13 full signatures of color and was printed with CMYK colors.

advertisements • The staff sold senior ads to parents, with an eighth of a page costing $50, a quarter page costing $75 and a half page costing $150. All parents received notification of this opportunity through fall mailings.

senior pictures • Candid Color Photography, 11010 Bacon Race Road, Woodbridge, VA, 22192, took all senior portraits, and chose which picture would appear in the yearbook. Kurt Araujo handled all arrangements and contact with the staff. Phone, 703.590.0187.

typography • Century Gothic font was used in all captions (8 pt), copy (10 pt), and folio tabs (20 pt). Headlines consisted of Monotype Corsiva and Century Gothic (Academics), BernCompressedT and BernCondT (Student Life), Impact and Snowwrite (Sports), Century Gothic and Snowwrite (Organizations), and Century Gothic (Dividers).

photography, writing, design and organization • With the exception of the senior portraits, all photography was taken by the Battlefield photography staff. All captions and copy were written by the Battlefield staff. All layouts were designed by the Battlefield editorial staff. This edition of the Battlefield is presented in chronological order, followed by a section featuring the dorms, sports team pictures, faculty pictures, advertisements, and staff pages.

distribution • Copies of the Battlefield are free to all students at the time of release. Funding comes from comprehensive fees and advertisement sales.

contact information • Inquiries regarding the publication can be directed to Battlefield Office, Seacobeck Hall, Room 107, 1301 College Avenue, Fredericksburg, Virginia, 22401. Phone, 540.654.1132. Email yearbook@umw.edu.
